

Site-based Training

The After-School Corporation (TASC) is a nonprofit organization established through a challenge grant from the Open Society Institute in 1998. Its mission is to enhance the quality, availability and sustainability of after-school programs in New York and beyond, with the goal of making after-school a public responsibility.

TASC Site-Based Trainings Description

TASC makes it convenient for the busy people who work in after-school programs (many of whom juggle other part-time jobs or college classes) to get trained at the after-school program locations where they work. Through TASC Site-Based Trainings, each program has the opportunity to select from hundreds of training workshops that best meet the diverse needs of program staff.

Site-Based trainings (which are available to TASC-funded and affiliated programs only) address a wide selection of topics. TASC publishes a Site-Based Training catalog which is updated every year. The catalog offers a large selection of training providers and a varied menu of trainings that cover arts, sports, science, literacy, child development, health and wellness, safety, youth development, life skills, parent engagement, leadership and management.

New York City community-based organizations that run after-school programs and would like to be affiliated with TASC are invited to purchase our training services. For further information, please contact Rosana Hirsch at rhirsch@tascorp.org.
